

Rob Walker

R.B.J. (Rob) Walker is Professor of International Relations at Keele University in the UK, Director of the Graduate Program in Cultural, Social and Political Theory at the University of Victoria in Canada, and Editor of the journal Alternatives: Global, Local, Political.

Rob Walker was educated at the University of Swansea, Wales and at Queen's University, Ontario, Canada. He has held visiting positions at many other institutions, including the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies in Delhi, P.U.C. in Rio de Janeiro, Princeton University, Australian National University and the University of British Columbia.

Professor Walker has written widely on the implications of contemporary global transformations for modern accounts of sovereignty, subjectivity and political practice. His best known book is Inside/Outside: International Relations as Political Theory, Cambridge University Press (1993). He is currently completing a new book, After the Globe/Before the World, and also putting together a collection of recent essays under the tentative title Out of Line. Among other collaborative projects focussed on a new politics of exceptionalism in the context of spatiotemporal rearticulations of claims to sovereignty, he is engaged in research on the changing relation between liberty and security in Europe; see <www.libertysecurity.org>.
